About AHOI

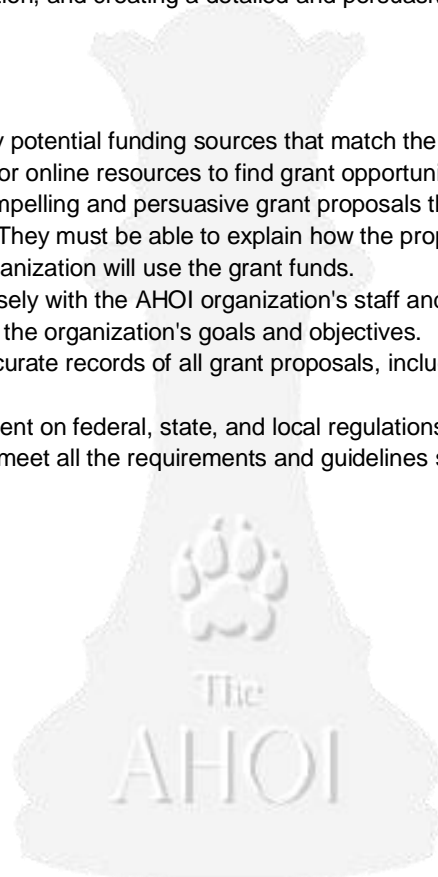

The Almighty's House of Ivriyah is an Ivriy restoration and wellness community service organization that focuses on initiatives and programs purposed to guide the Ivriy community, and specifically Ivriyahs back to their true source of empowerment, light, and love. The Almighty's House of Ivriyah's mission is to re-establish the order of Ivriyah womanhood to restore and rehabilitate the melanated community.

BE AN AHOI GRANT WRITER

AHOI is looking for a "Grant Writers" who are responsible for helping secure funding by researching and writing grant proposals. Grant writers are skilled at communicating the mission and goals of an organization in a compelling way to potential funders. They are responsible for understanding the specific requirements of each grant opportunity, identifying the needs of the organization, and creating a detailed and persuasive proposal that meets the funder's criteria.

Duties & Responsibilities

- Conduct research to identify potential funding sources that match the organization's needs and goals. Grant writers may use databases or online resources to find grant opportunities.
- Grant writers must write compelling and persuasive grant proposals that clearly articulate the organization's mission, goals, and needs. They must be able to explain how the proposed project will benefit the community and how the organization will use the grant funds.
- Grant writers must work closely with the AHOI organization's staff and executive teams to ensure that the proposal accurately reflects the organization's goals and objectives.
- Grant writers must keep accurate records of all grant proposals, including deadlines, submission dates, and funding results.
- Grant writers must stay current on federal, state, and local regulations that govern grant funding. They must ensure that their proposals meet all the requirements and guidelines set by funding agencies.
